Beach Nourishment- Phase 5

The Town received a minor permit modification for the construction of Phase 5 and applied for and received a $16,815,000 loan from the US Department of Agriculture (USDA). CP&E prepared the plans, specs, and bid documents and the Phase 5 project was advertised for bids in October. The Town later decided to cancel its request for bids due to the comments received from the prospective bidders. The bid results were not going to be within budget for construction this year based on dredge availability. The dredging contractors said that they were either not available or were not comfortable they could finish by the March 31st deadline which would put the Town at risk for a second mobilization. The USDA funds will be available for one year and the Town is requesting a one year extension. Postponing construction allows the Town time to complete the permitting process for Phases 2-4 and for the Town to consider other options, such as combining phases to save on mobilization costs. The Board discussed the possibility of re-advertising the project in late spring 2014 with a project start date as early as November 16, 2014.

NTB has Beach Wheelchairs and Walker

The chairs and walker are available on a first come, first serve basis and must be returned daily. Interested parties can go to the North Topsail Beach Police Department at Town Hall (2008 Loggerhead Court, N Topsail Beach, NC) to sign for and pick up the equipment (call 910-328-0042 to check availability). The equipment is available for use Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. and when possible, special arrangements may be made to allow for weekend use. The wheelchairs are not collapsible, so a van or truck may be needed to transport them to the beach.

CBRA Legislation

Write your congressman to support upcoming CBRA legislation, to lower flood insurance rates, a sample letter can be found at this link <http://www.ntbnc.org/Documents/LH%20CBRA%20031413%20Sample%20Letter%20for%20CBRA.pdf>. The NTB website also has a word version to download.

Onslow County African American Heritage Trail

The nomination for the Ocean City community to be added to the Jacksonville-Onslow African-American Heritage Trail was approved! The Trail is a combined effort of Onslow County Tourism, the Onslow County Museum, and the Minority Business Services Division of the Jacksonville-Onslow Chamber of Commerce and celebrates the history and accomplishments of local African-American leaders, communities, history, arts and culture. It was formally announced in February 2010, and is an ongoing project.

A celebration of the installation is being planned, so be on the lookout for the announcement.

Little Free Libraries in Ocean City

What is a Little Free Library? It's a "take a book, return a book" gathering place where neighbors share their favorite literature and stories. In its most basic form, a Little Free Library is a box full of books where anyone may stop by and pick up a book (or two) and bring back another book to share. The free libraries will be located at the intersections of Ocean Drive with Carver, Greene and Chestnut Streets.

Congratulations to "Tatum's Totes" for Reaching Their Goal!

A special thank you to everyone who donated tote bags, gifts and monetary donations for this great cause. With the help of Tatum's family and friends, 100 tote bags were given to children hospitalized during the holiday season.

Estate Planning Essentials: 8 Steps to Protect Your Family

Nobody likes to think about estate planning — except perhaps for estate lawyers. It's simultaneously morbid and boring, and you probably already have a long enough to-do list. The gutters are full of leaves and the kids need fall clothes — why worry about power of attorney?

But look at it this way: If the worst should happen and you don't have your financial affairs in order, you'll leave your loved ones a big headache, and possibly a financial burden. No one will be worried about home maintenance, but they will be forced to make crucial decisions about your estate at an emotionally charged time, with no idea if they're doing what you had in mind.

Most importantly, taking care of the basics in advance will also help ensure that your money stays in the family and not in the hands of your least-favorite uncle: Uncle Sam. Here are eight fairly simple steps you should take now to protect your family and your assets later.

1. Draft a will. More than half of American adults don't have one. Big mistake. Even if you don't have a Gates-sized estate, someone will need to handle your financial affairs after you die, and it'll be easier if there's a document spelling things out. This is especially important if you have children; the will should name a guardian for anyone under 18. You'll also want to name a trusted person as executor of your estate. If you have young children, ask an attorney about creating a minor's trust — assets you leave them will be held in the trust until they reach your state's "age of majority" (18 in most states). Review your will every two to three years, or whenever there's a life event, such as a birth, death, marriage or divorce.

2. Ask an attorney about trusts. If you establish a living trust, your estate can bypass probate and its associated costs and hassles, but you probably need one only if your estate is worth more than about $2 million, you own real estate in more than one state or you want to keep the terms of your estate private. Otherwise, you might want to create a trust within your will to manage your assets after your death. This is a good idea if you fall into one or more of these categories: 1) You have minor children and don't want to leave property directly to them. 2) You have adult children and aren't confident they can responsibly manage their inheritance. 3) You want to protect your assets from ending up with a creditor or a child's ex-spouse.

3. Assign a power of attorney. This authorizes someone to handle matters if you're unable to act on your own behalf. There are two types: financial power of attorney, which lets someone take care of things such as writing checks; and medical power of attorney, which allows someone to make decisions about your health care. Without this form, your loved ones might have to go to court to handle simple estate matters if you were incapacitated. Decide whether you want a standard durable power of attorney, or a "springing" power of attorney that requires a doctor declare you incompetent or incapable before it's active. Update this document about every five years even if it's correct, since officials sometimes are hesitant about accepting an older form.

4. Set up an advance directive. Basically, this document lays out your end-of-life preferences, such as whether you'd want a feeding tube or to be placed on a respirator, if necessary. It can incorporate related requests such as a living will (explaining when you'd want to be allowed to die), medical power of attorney and Do Not Resuscitate orders. Creating one doesn't require an attorney; find the advance directive permitted in your state at caringinfo.org. Some states require you to have this document witnessed, so make sure you follow the rules to make it official.

5. Be sure you have enough life insurance. If you have children dependent on you financially, you need life insurance to cover lost income after you die. Generally, term life is your best bet; Accuquote.com can give you premium quotes. (A good rule of thumb: have enough life insurance to equal 10 times your annual salary.) If you're interested in permanent life insurance (such as variable or universal) with a built-in savings component, speak with your financial planner to find the right coverage.

6. Update your beneficiaries. You may not realize it, but beneficiaries on your 401(k), insurance policies, retirement accounts and investments trump your will. So even though you've left everything to your children in your will, if your ex-wife is still listed as your IRA beneficiary, the stash goes to her. Review your designations about every two years or upon life events, such as the birth of a child. And make sure to choose a contingent beneficiary. Otherwise, if your primary beneficiary dies before you do, your funds will go to your estate, which can create tax and legal issues.

7. Organize your paperwork. Do you know where your tax returns, insurance policies, brokerage and 401(k) statements, and mortgage paperwork are? If you're not sure, you can bet your loved ones won't be able to find them when they need to, plunging them into estate-settling hell. Put everything together in one place and then tell your spouse or closest family member where that is. Aside from the documents mentioned above, also include: your Social Security and health insurance/Medicare cards, plus contact information for your doctors, lawyers and accountants.

8. Keep it in the right place. Never keep your original will in your safe-deposit box. Some states seal the box when someone dies until the estate has been settled. (And of course, settling the estate is easier with the original will in hand.) You can keep a copy of your will in the safe-deposit box, but the original belongs with your lawyer or in a fireproof box at home or in your office. You may even want to scan all your important financial paperwork and keep a virtual copy with a Web site like vitalSAFE.com (it's free for up to 100MB of space). Just be sure to share access with your closest family member, so he or she will be able to get in.

Crock Pot Cheesecake

Ingredients:

Crust:

3/4 cup vanilla wafer crumbs or graham cracker crumbs

1/8 teaspoon almond extract

1 tablespoon sugar

3 tablespoons butter, melted

Filling:

1 cup ricotta cheese (light)

12 ounces cream cheese, light (neufchatel)

1 cup sugar

2 eggs

3 tablespoons whipping cream

1/4 cup amaretto

1/4 cup plus 1 tablespoon cocoa

1/4 cup all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon vanilla

1/3 cup miniature semisweet chocolate chips

Preparation:

Combine crust ingredients and pat into a 7-inch spring form pan.

Beat the cheeses with the sugar until smooth; add eggs and whipping cream and beat for about 3 minutes on medium speed of an electric hand-held mixer. Add amaretto, cocoa, flour and vanilla; beat for about 1 more minute. Stir in chocolate chips; pour into prepared pan. Place the cheesecake on a rack in the Crock Pot (or use a "ring" of aluminum foil to keep it off the bottom of the pot). Cover and cook on high for 2 1/2 to 3 hours. Let stand in the covered pot (after turning it off) for about 1 to 2 hours, until cool enough to handle. Cool thoroughly before removing pan sides. Chill before serving; store leftovers in the refrigerator.
